What's in it for your employees?

The Active 20-30 Club US & Canada develops leaders and serves the needs of children in over 30 clubs coast-to-coast. Each chapter or club is locally run by a volunteer board of directors and club members who are focused on serving the unique needs of children in their local communities. Every club has its own particular focus and style, but each has a common goal to improve the quality of life of the youth of their community.

Mission Statement

Active 20-30 US & Canada provides young adults with an opportunity for personal growth, friendships, and leadership development while improving the quality of life for the underserved children in their communities.

What's in it from a business point of view?

- Beneficial for the mental health of remote workers, to get them out of the house and active in their communities.
- Develop leadership skills by helping run events, joining the club's board of directors or even the National Board of Directors.
- Maintain employees by providing the employee a connection to the city they work in.
- If your company is trying to become more connected to your own community; sponsoring a club member's dues is a tax write-off.
- Networking with local professionals (e.g. if a club member needs a lawyer, real estate agent, accountant, insurance agent, etc. they will often seek out fellow club members first).
- Do some of your remote workers or family/friends live somewhere distant? If there isn't a club in the area, they can become a member at large until there are enough to charter their own new club. All it takes is 10 people between the ages of 20-39!
